HepHIV 2021

The next HepHIV conference will take place 5-7 May 2021 in a mixed face-to-face and virtual format involving participants from across community, public health and the health system. The conference will focus on the latest evidence, best practices, achievements and challenges in the field of viral hepatitis, HIV, tuberculosis (TB) and sexually transmitted infections (STI) prevention, testing and care, highlighting progress achieved in testing policy implementation since the ECDC integrated testing guidance was released in 2018. The conference will also specifically address the impact of and lessons learned from the COVID-19 pandemic on the availability and provision of testing and other health services.

ISHEID 2021

The next International Symposium on HIV and Emerging Infectious Diseases (ISHEID) will exceptionally be virtual and is scheduled from 17 to 20 May, 2021.

The understanding of HIV and HCV infections continues to grow rapidly, especially regarding our ability to develop novel prevention and therapeutic strategies that will lead to the reduction of new infections. The burden of non communicable diseases in HIV infected subjects implicates a multidisciplinary approach of the infection and the need of close interactions with specialists from other disciplines.

ISHEID 2021 will dedicate a privileged place to state-of-the-art presentations, as well as to debates among experienced and younger investigators regarding new data and their implications. This event will have invited lectures by European and International leaders, as well as oral abstracts and poster presentations.

It will be unique in its approach, as it will engage basic scientists and clinicians from the HIV, HCV and emerging infectious diseases fields.
